CORPORATE SALMON FISHING

Jock Monteith is a highly respected Salmon fishing provider who has built a solid reputation for arranging and delivering top service levels within the Scottish salmon fishing industry.

Numerous appearances on BBC Reporting Scotland, Sky's Alba Turas A Bhradain series, French Sky TV sporting television, BBC's Grand Tours of Scotland & Scottish Television together with interviews on Radio Scotland and various input in tabloids Telegraph & Scotsman have established his reputation as a leading promotor & figure in Scottish salmon fishing.

Jock has also achieved success in various other areas of the sport including playing the pioneering & private fundraising role for Europe's largest ever river habitat survey on the River Tay which successfully evaluated over 1000 miles of the Tay system's headwaters. He was also the first ghillie in Scotland to publicly call for a 'Catch & Release' policy for the conservation of Scotland's Atlantic salmon.

His love affair with Scottish salmon fishing started in 1970 when he landed his first salmon at the age of five on the Tay under the guidance of the late 'legendary' Willie 'the ghillie' Laird. As a 'time served' Head Ghillie on the River Tay Jock has taught thousands of salmon anglers and his professional guide team are fully versed in duplicating his salmon fishing teaching techniques which are simplistic, logical and effective.

Jock has 15 years experience in arranging high end corporate hospitality salmon fishing days where attention to detail and the client experience are always at the forefront of his thoughts. Notably amongst others Jock has been a loyal and dedicated provider to the Scottish flagship Gleneagles Hotel for the last 12 years due to his ability to deliver quality guided Scottish salmon fishing. His unique reputation has brought him clients from the corporate VIP world & Royalty.
